The Cape Wildlife Center is a non-profit wildlife hospital and education center located in Barnstable, Massachusetts. Each year we provide veterinary care and rehabilitation to 2,000 sick, injured, and orphaned wild animals. In addition to caring for these patients, we also work to educate members of our community, and spread the message of environmental conservation. Each day we work to preserve the rich natural history of Cape Cod and the islands, one animal—and one person, at a time.

Thank You!

required individual treatment and feeding. Our staff and volunteers worked hard to give each one a healthy start in life.

I know we'll need even more help this spring as more injured wildlife are rescued.

Right now, we have a dedicated squirrel team of 8 volunteers and staff who are constantly rotating between patients to feed, clean, and do health checks every day.

These helpless babies, in addition to all the storm victims we received—from dovies found up and down the Cape, to possums with frostbite, to geese, snowy owls and ducks frozen to ponds and beaches—all depend on us for critical, lifesaving care.

You should know that Cape Wildlife Center receives no state or federal funding. We rely on you and other generous neighbors to help with food, medicine, and shelter costs for the more than 2,000 injured or abandoned animals we treat each year.

This snowy owl had eye and shoulder injuries

That's why I'm asking you to make the most generous donation you can today to help us nurture and heal these baby squirrels, and many other local animals who have suffered in these storms.

Every dollar you donate will make a difference.

Thank you for caring,

Zak Mertz

P.S. I'm excited to tell you that Cape Wildlife Center and New England Wildlife Center are joining together to increase our rescue and rehab resources. We're better together—saving even more of our native wildlife!

P.P.S. Thank you from all of us working to heal orphaned and injured animals.
